Title: Damn, This Stuff Is Heavy Vol. 2

Artist: VARIOUS

Damn, This Stuff Is Heavy, Vol. 2

If you look at today's heavy metal scene, you quickly realize that modern trends come and go, while traditional metal is constantly appreciated and celebrated even by younger generations of fans. Because traditional metal not only upholds values like the physical product, but also pays respect and admiration to the history of the music. The times that hard rock of the seventies and speed metal are mutually exclusive have been over for several years. The band logos belonging to the tracklist of this double CD could adorn every metalheads dress!

Already part 1 of „Damn, This Stuff Is Heavy“, released in spring 2019, underlined this phenomenon.

In the middle of this scene is already since the eighties Neudi.

He is a drummer, journalist, presenter, studio technician, A&R, music salesman in a store and, of course, fan and crazy collector. So Neudi has a 360° view of everything metal.

„There have always been festivals where the mix was very colorful, think of the Metal Hammer event at the Loreley in 1985, but the new spectrum really struck me at the Sweden Rock Festival at the end of the 2000s. Electric Light Orchestra on stage 1 and a thrash band on stage 2, and the fans found it hard to choose,“ says Neudi, whose musical taste starts in the late sixties and ends with thrash metal. Another challenge is to always make drums absolutely real. So they have to be recorded with microphones and should also not be edited on a PC under any circumstances afterwards. „I've been fighting against plastic sounds for years, even if I don't just make friends in the process“.

On part 1 Hawkwind and Satan are probably the best known bands. Volume 2 surprises now with really big names. Among them also Kiss, a group that is very difficult to inspire for a sampler contribution. But of course this is a rather obscure track from the 74 album „Hotter Than Hell“.

„I love the song ‚Strange Ways‘ because it shows that Kiss were and are more than just glam rock'n'roll. It sounds almost as dark as Black Sabbath!“. Equally notable are Anthrax, Jag Panzer, Angel (1975), Rage, Demon, Candlemass, Tiamat, Coroner or Meshuggah. In addition, and as usual, Neudi has dug deeper. Therefore, cult acts like the bizarre soundtrack band Sorcery (1978) ennoble the double CD as well as the share of NWOBHM and some current newcomers.

The booklet contains liner notes and many illustrations. Thus, it additionally upgrades „DTSIH2“ as a physical product. This time there is no burning record player on the cover, but a discarded tape machine. The old advertising slogan „hot music“, or rather „hot metal“, was again implemented without Photoshop tricks topping off the musical content and Volume One!

Title: This is Latin Jazz
 Artist: CHARLIE SEPÚLVEDA & THE TURNAROUND

Although many people may not realize it, Puerto Rico is the home of a vibrant and thriving jazz scene. It is here that Latin Jazz trumpeter Charlie Sepúlveda lives and does the bulk of his playing but he is certainly no stranger to New York City. Born in the Bronx, Sepúlveda appeared regularly in the Big Apple throughout the 70s and 80s with his cousin - a Latin Jazz pianist of some notoriety named Eddie Palmieri - and the likes of Mongo Santamaria, Dave Valentin, Tito Puente and countless others. He is currently a Professor at the Puerto Rico Conservatory of music and leads one of the island's most popular jazz ensembles, The Turnaround. The band is a collection of celebrity jazz chefs who mix together a tasty dish of Latin Jazz, hard bop and Afro-American rhythms. „Today, what is called ‚Latin Jazz‘ is different in so many ways. Earlier it was oriented towards Afro-Cuban styles,“ Charlie said in an interview, „I play the traditional form of Latin jazz mixed with hard bop and always with Puerto Rican styles like Bomba, Plena, and Danza.“ So it was only natural that Sepúlveda name this live recording from NYC's jazz Mecca Dizzy's, This is Latin Jazz, since it features the type of music the trumpeter grew up playing and on which he cut his musical teeth. An all-star group of his colleagues showed up to play with the band including Randy Brecker, Miguel Zenon, Steve Turre and Nestor Torres. Sepúlveda's cherished wife Natalia Mercado also provides a vocal on the touching ballad, „Alfonsina y el Mar.“ An important recording from one of the most beloved and respected instrumentalists, leaders and composers in Latin Jazz, Charlie Sepúlveda.

Title: Live at the Deer Head InnArtist: JIM SNIDERO

As with many professions, it was a difficult thing to be a jazz musician during the pandemic year of 2020, but alto saxophonist Jim Snidero found himself in a unique situation: he was able to assemble a quartet for a feasible, safe, limited-audience gig at Pennsylvania's famed Deer Head Inn. Snidero and his colleagues relished the chance to commune with listeners, and one another, on the bandstand again at long last. Live at the Deer Head Inn is the result, and as Snidero remarks in the liner notes, „It just felt like the perfect opportunity to cut through the fog of this damn pandemic and mark this moment in time.“ The energy and excitement are palpable on this, as Snidero rallies his players and the audience in an exuberant set of what he calls „comfort music,“ beginning with a trenchant take on Charlie Parker's „Now's the Time“ (with Bird's daughter, Kim Parker, in attendance to hear it). The depth of swing and interplay is evident in every measure, and Snidero's sound and phrasing reveal a disposition of his own, guided by a unique melodic and harmonic concept - qualities that have earned him recognition in the Downbeat and JazzTimes Critics Polls.
