Much Too Young To Rock 'n' Roll –
The Complete Recordings 1980-1982

Much Too Young To Rock'n' Roll also available on vinyl !!!

At the end of the seventies, The Teens were on a triumphal march and dominated youth magazines like „Bravo“. Of course, it didn't take long before they had competition. Speedy were a real band, that were discovered playing music in their rehearsal room. A little later, the first single „Willy Is Back“ was produced by Didi Zill (Birth Control, The Nighthawks), who was also known as a photographer for Bravo. The band made it without any detours to Ilya Richer's cult programme „Disco“. This led to the band's first and unfortunately only LP „Much Too Young To Rock'n'Roll“ and the eponymous single with the banger „Fight Like A Fighter“ on the B-side. Both tracks made it to TV again (a holiday show with Karl Dall and for the second time the show Disco) - Speedy became highly requested!

Speedy were approached by a well-known American management to go on tour as support for Def Leppard. But this chance for an absolute breakthrough was taken away from the still underage musicians, as their parents were not enthusiastic about the idea and forbade this step. This was also the end of Speedy. Or almost the end, because in 1982 one last single was still released under the name Speed, which included a cover version of Free and the song „Hurt Your Feelings“. This song shows that Speed(y) would have had what it takes to step out of the image of the Bravo teenage band.

He is on par with many melodic heavy acts like Def Leppard in their early days. Therefore, the first re-release of the LP and all single tracks is now presented on the hard rock/metal label Golden Core.

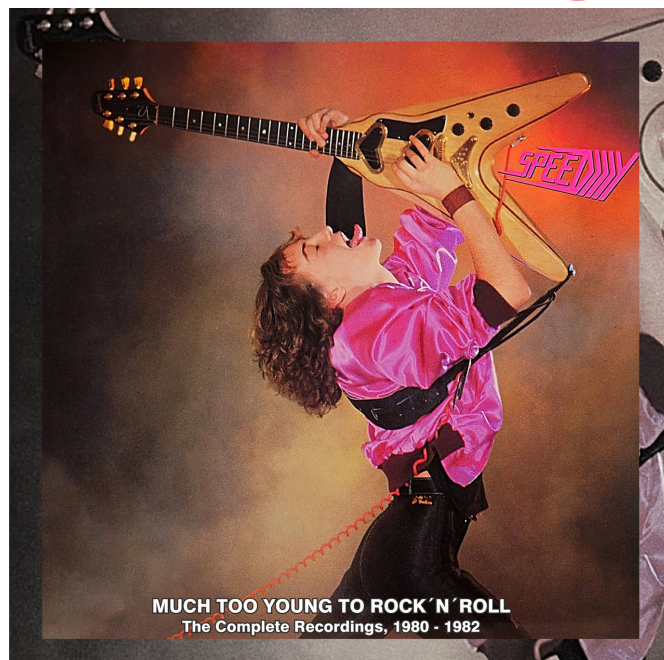

Of course, the fans „from back then“ will get their money's worth, but also today's lovers of straight composed heavy songs (NWOBHM, various German 80s acts) will get their money's worth.

By the way, Speedy dared a new start, but the reunion was slowed down a bit by Corona.

It will definitely be extremely interesting to see what the three gentlemen, who have been active in regional bands in recent years and have therefore never forgotten how to rock, will have to offer!

Title: Ready For The Show
Artist: SCHLOSS

Now on vinyl!

In 1975, the German hard rock band Schloss released the album „Weltschmerz,“ which was released in Europe on Giorgio Moroder’s label Oasis and in the U.S. on Casablanca, popular for the shock rocker band KISS. But the trio remained unsuccessful and singer/guitarist Klaus Luley founded the iconic Tokyo, and later the group Craaft. Until recently, that was the end of Schloss’s story, except that „Weltschmerz“ is now quite sought after.

In 1981 the LP „Ready For The Show“ was released by a band that obviously had the same name idea. Or maybe they didn’t have it at all? The information content on the LP is so low that you can’t even find a line-up. One can learn that the management came from the Frankfurt area and the LP was recorded at Spygel Studios, Kirchheim/Teck, and released on the label „PEAK“. Insiders know at least that this is an early disc from GAMA Records’ talent factory, because PEAK was one of their labels.

Until today it can’t be found out that this SCHLOSS is the same band, not even via the portal Discogs. After nerve-racking research it could finally be brought to light that drummer Willy Waid and bassist Roger Kaeschner apparently continued SCHLOSS without Klaus Luley. Golden Core fills this knowledge gap with the re-release of this mystical disc, on CD and vinyl. „Ready For The Show“ offers everything that makes this time (1981) so exciting, from genuine hard rock to proto metal. So the band anticipated a bit what Mötley Crüe would stand for years later. Glam Metal can be felt as well as a few „NWOBHM made in Germany moments“. A truly obscure record, which is now re-released for the first time!
