Title: Steps
 Artist: SIEGES EVEN

- first reissue of a true prog-metal classic
- first remastering (+ LP with separate vinyl mastering)
- booklet / inlay LP with photos, scans and a new interview with Markus Steffen
- produced by Charlie Bauerfeind (Lakeside Studios, 1990)

The Munich-rooted band SIEGES EVEN's debut album "Life Cycle" (1988) was already a culture shock. At a loss for words, journalists tried to describe progressive thrash with terms like "jazz metal", while metal fans reacted with either enthusiasm or a big question mark over their heads. Regardless, everyone understood that this was one of Germany's finest musical bands. Two years later, they did even better with the successor "Steps"...

The thrash element had been reduced to almost nothing, but they had ruthlessly shown that they had become even more competent in recent months. The band, still young at the time, was playing at a level unprecedented in European heavy metal. Only in America have Watchtower or Dream Theater delivered such complicated material. In good Rush tradition, "Steps" features a long song on side A (25 minutes!), while side B has five tracks and an outro. The track "Corridors" is another example of the young musicians' elusive abilities. "Steps" is more independent overall than 'Life Cycle', which was still very reminiscent of Watchtower. Thanks to the vocals of Franz Herde, who was no longer present on its successor, the first chapter of Sieges Even closes here.

"Steps" was recorded in 1990 at Lakeside Studios by Charlie Bauerfeind, now a well-known producer. Despite the demanding material, the album was a success. Today, "Steps" can be found in many lists when it comes to major prog metal or prog rock albums. It had not been available since the original Steamhammer / SPV pressings!

The CD and LP have been mastered separately, so that each format can deliver its own particular sound.

Title: Ferrum GravisArtist: VIRON

- first vinyl release of a metal classic from the 00s
- remastered double LP in gatefold with 4-page booklet
- contains a Manilla Road cover version and other rare bonus tracks
- some members later played with Manilla Road, Savage Grace and Trance, among others

From the remains of the true metal project SEDUCTION, which was initiated by a management, a real band emerged in 2004: VIRON. In contrast to SEDUCTION, VIRON sounded more mature and down-to-earth. Influences from US metal and NWOBHM mixed with European metal, which was something special for a German group in 2004. Traditional heavy metal was slowly getting back on its feet after grunge, crossover and gothic, and VIRON were early on in this development. The first EP released by the band, which was already called NWOGHM (New Wave Of German Heavy Metal), was a huge hit in the underground and they played a few shows without a record deal, including at the Headbangers Open Air near Hamburg. This got the labels interested and in 2006 they decided on the Greek company Sonic Age (aka. Cult Metal Classics).

The EP was expanded to include more songs recorded in the same studio (Kohlekeller Studio) and became an album. After consistently fantastic album reviews, they performed at the Sworbrothers Festival, United Metalheads and with bands like Sabaton, Custard and Solemnity.

VIRON switched to Metal Heaven Records in 2007 and released the successful follow-up „Ferrum Gravis“ in 2008. The slogan at the time, „Underground Metal for the masses,“ fits like a glove, because the powerful but naturally produced album bridges the gap between the underground scene and, let's call it „conventional heavy metal.“ Insiders might say „between Lauda-Königshofen and Wacken.“ This is also shown by the skillful cover version of the Manilla Road classic „Dreams Of Eschaton.“ Unfortunately, Viron disbanded a few months after the release of Ferrum Gravis, but the band became a springboard for three members of Viron who later appeared in Manilla Road, Trance, Savage Grace, Roxxcalibur, Bonfire and Jameson Raid, among others.

Title: The Dark, The Light, The Grey And The ColorfulArtist: JD ALLEN

Though the term “visionary” is rather overused, it certainly applies to tenor saxophonist and composer JD Allen. A musical sponge of sorts, Allen is a remarkable amalgam of a wide variety of musical styles and influences, blurring the boundaries of contemporary jazz by creating a dynamic fusion of tradition and modernity. There is a decidedly “third stream” quality to Allen’s compositions, combining as they do advanced classical compositional techniques, the incorporation of electronic sounds and the distillation of historic jazz genres such as call and response, field hollers and, of course, the blues. This type of music relies on the total dedication of all the performers and Allen’s latest recording features three of his regular colleagues, the acoustic and electric basses of Gregg August and Ian Kenselaar and the remarkably expressive drummer, Nic Cacioppo. These men have worked with Allen on his previous Savant recordings, perhaps most notably on the unofficial trilogy of Americana, Americana Vol. 2 and Barracoon, and can be considered kindred spirits with their leader. Together, they delve into themes of culture and history, offering moving narratives through their sophisticated approach and profound improvisational skills.

Title: The Tables Will Turn
Artist: BRANDON SANDERS

As far as drummer Brandon Sanders is concerned, everyone should have a grandmother who runs a jazz club. It was at the Casablanca, his grandmother's nightspot in Kansas City, that he was first exposed to the music of such greats as Jimmy Smith, Grant Green, and Lou Donaldson. Sanders may be long removed from those formative days, but on this CD, his sophomore recording for Savant, he pays homage to the influence and memory of his grandmother, Ernestine Parker, in the album's first track, "Miss Ernestine." With his understated, whispery light touch on the drums, Sanders breathes fresh life into favorites, such as Parker's "Moose the Mooche" and Monk's "Four in One." The group shifts into pop mode on the Michael Jackson hit "Human Nature," which features guest vocalist Christie Dashiell, who also delivers a sensuous version of Ellington's "Prelude to a Kiss." Featuring vibraphonist Warren Wolf, pianist Keith Brown, bassist David Wong and saxophonist Chris Lewis, The Tables Will Turn marks another important chapter in Brandon Sanders' career.
