Title: 80s Rock Gems From Germany

Artist: VARIOUS

The early 1980s were a very special time for harder rock from Germany. Progressive rock and so-called Krautrock were on the wane, punk had to give way to new wave, and heavy metal was beginning to gain momentum. Some bands were caught between two stools between 1980 and 1983 and can even be described as 'the missing link'. This box set contains three gems and insider tips that sound even more exciting today than they did back then. REQUIEM came from Stuttgart and delivered a mix of hard rock, pomp rock and progressive rock on their only LP. Guitarist Tommy Clauss later became famous with bands such as ZAR, which also featured ex-Uriah Heep singer John Lawton. SPHINX is a different story, as it was founded by a few Italian guest worker sons in the Stuttgart area. The debut album 'Here We Are' was marketed by the label as 'Made In Italy', which was of course just a sales strategy. SPHINX anticipated what Dream Theater, among others, would deliver years later. An early version of prog metal, or a precursor to it. The same album was re-released by another label in 1985 as 'Burning Lights'; this time with heavy metal-style cover artwork. LIMERICK from Saarbrücken recorded a single in 1980 as a school band, which is now very rare. Their only album was released in 1983 – with German lyrics! The powerful rock with dialect vocals was very successful regionally and played shows with Kim Wilde and Climax Blues Band. The group is active again today and was recently featured in Rock Hard magazine.
